Wilmington P: 302.571.6676

Tim concentrates his practice on guiding corporate debtors through in-court and out-of-court restructurings. Through his bankruptcy experience in both the private and public sectors, Tim is able to identify issues unique to each individual client, collaborate with the client regarding recommended courses of action, and implement solutions for an efficient emergence from the Chapter 11 process.

Tim received his undergraduate degree from the University of Texas and graduated from the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law in 2018, where he served as an Articles Editor for the Journal of Business & Technology Law and received the Joseph Bernstein Prize for his casenote Puerto Rico v. Franklin California Tax-Free Trust: Congressional Intent Interpreted Through a Plain Reading of the Federal Bankruptcy Code.

While in law school, Tim was a federal judicial intern for Judge Robert A. Gordon at the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Maryland. Following law school, Tim served as a law clerk to then Chief Judge Robert N. Opel, II at the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania.
