Temple Law Class of 2024 Excels on Pennsylvania Bar Examination

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY BEASLEY SCHOOL OF LAW

Temple Law School proudly congratulates the newest generation of Temple lawyers, as 148 graduates have passed the July 2024 Pennsylvania bar examination. As in past years, the bar will admit more Temple graduates than those from any other law school. Temple's 90.57% pass rate for first-time test takers is the school's highest in 11 years.

“Temple Law’s highest strategic priority is student success. These results affirm that commitment,” said Dean Rachel Rebouché. “They also reflect the hard work, talent, and determination of our graduates, and we are excited to see what they will accomplish next as the newest generation of Temple lawyers.”

The development of a comprehensive bar prep curriculum includes doctrinal review sessions and information about test-taking strategies and the bar exam’s structure. In an email to faculty, Dean Rebouché thanked the many faculty members and senior administrators who worked together to ensure students are ready and well-prepared.

The Temple Law Alumni Association held a swearing-in ceremony for successful Temple graduates on October 17, 2024. Temple faculty and alumni were present to congratulate the new lawyers and welcome them to the Pennsylvania bar.

In October, it was my pleasure to Chair and help coordinate the 21st Annual Pennsylvania Bar Admission Ceremony & Reception for recent graduates of Temple Law School, held at Philadelphia City Hall. The admittees and their guests heard remarks from Dean Rachel Rebouche and Alumni President Jeremy Menkowitz, as well as distinguished alumni and members of the Bench, Judge Sheila Woods-Skipper, '83, Judge Glynnis D. Hill, '84, and Judge Viktoria Kristiansson, '03, who all presided and administered the oath. I delivered our final remarks, focused on the mission of service within our profession and as a tradition of Temple Law.

In an novel twist, it was my honor to also be admitted to the Pennsylvania Bar during the same event which I helped coordinate for our recent graduates. After being sworn in, all attendees celebrated their accomplishments together at a reception in the beautiful City Hall Law Library.
